Dear Mr. Blake,

I am writing to voice my opinion. I believe that we as consumers have every right to know what is in the foods we eat. I believe that all genetically altered foods as well as all irradiated foods Must be clearly labeled as such. It is our bodies and those of our families into which these foods go. It is our money that is used to purchase them. It is our right to decide if we wish to ingest them or not. It is most assuredly not the right of Government or Business to make these decisions for us. We must have the right to vote with our dollars, and purchase them or not as we see fit. If the demand is there they will sell just fine, if not they won't. Of course you know all that. I can only assume that is why CODEX is attempting to jam them down our throats.

Sincerely,
Edward T. Ramsey
